

“Happiness is a Heartfelt Fruitfulness”

(Keep Planting your Seeds to Reap the Fruits of Your Labor)

This is an inspirational true story I want to share with you, my readers, as an addendum to his essay, “The Farmer and the Sell” and it goes like this: Once upon a time, there's this character of and with an undaunting (positive mental attitude) of a man so fruitfully successful and happy that people who come to know of or about him far and wide ask him how he did it. They ask him how he can be so blessed. They pointed to his loving family along with the abundance of his life's achievements and accomplishments inherently true to his characters nature. Any curious soul would indeed ask the same things. He answered and said, "Just keep planting." the seeds of his hypothesis theory that became the practice to his success story. For him, there are two seasons in his universe, the planting and the harvesting of it. What the curious people didn't know is that this successful and happy man they admired and envied at the same time is actually just like some of them who dreamed, who labored, and who struggled persistently. For sixty five years right to this very day, he's still in the planting season of his life, yet he is consistently reaping the fruits of his labor as well. Fervently determined, he keeps planting and never gives up until he's achieved his goals. However, it was at those moments in his life he was faced with the ongoing hardships and suffering from the challenging poor crops of what Mother Nature dealt him (analogy) but he never wavered in his positive mindset. In short, planting season is about chasing after the blessings, while harvest season is about blessings chasing after you -- if you don't quit.

So how to get to harvest, you may ask, first, just keep planting those seeds even if you see no visible results, yet. Just like some of us, maybe you've been looking for a job for so long, but still, there's nothing in sight. That's okay-don't give up looking and applying anyway. Or perhaps you've been dying to find that true love of your life, but you always end up feeling lonely or with a broken “Heart”. Never mind and never be jaded or disappointed (remember the analogy) just keep on dating and looking for “Mr. or Mrs. Right”. Or perhaps you're struggling with your finances, but you're still in debt. Never lose heart, keep trying and working on it. Remember, with the right mindset, Mother Nature isn't always unkind.

Some of us think that if we keep planting, we'll harvest. But unfortunately, that's not how it works. You've got to keep planting and never giving up ... you'll ultimately harvest when (analogy), Mother Nature is on your side. So don't lose “Heart” for harvest will surly come! But don't forget, also that you need to plant your seeds in the suitable environment for if you have the right seeds planted in the wrong places of environment, there's still no harvest to look forward to. So you've got to have faith for it's the abundance of the right mindset to water and supply ample sunlight to your seeds. So, if you're looking for that right job, the love of your life, your financial blessings etc aside from working hard on it, expect to reap the fruits of your labor and cultivate that abundance-mindset and welcome its possibility in your life even at harvest time. With a (Positive mental attitude) of a mindset along with a heartfelt inspiration to motivate you, you will plant the seeds in all the right places to fit the environment you wisely chose and committed to and expect to make it happen and it will. Just keep in mind and remember that happiness is fruitfulness -- don't get it mixed up monetarily only -- its two different mindsets of lives.

I know you can do this if your heart is true to your character and try, because I did it in the most unlikely worst case scenario “sort of like planting seeds in the middle of a desert” yet I still grew a healthy fruitful crop. This is a narrative account to this characters true story that is the extension too his “Biographical Memoir Overview”

Sincerely, Don L. Johnson
