

Words with Meaning

Integrity: 1-Adherence to a code of values: 2-Incorruptible-unimpaired condition, 3-honesty and sincerity, Soundness, completeness, honorableness 4-Moral-excellence.

Principles: The code of conduct of behavior governing an individual or a group (as the member of a profession)

Ethics: in philosophy, the study and evaluation of human conduct in the light of moral principles. Moral principles may be viewed either as the standard of conduct that individuals have constructed for themselves or as the body of obligations and duties that a particular society requires of its members.

Value: The accepted standards or moral principles of a person or a group. Values are similar to norms in having a moral and regulatory role, but values have a wider significance than norms in going beyond specific situations. Values are viewed as informing norms in different contexts.

To sum it up, If any person has to compromise their Integrity thinking through judgments of what they know to be wrong over right thinking at the expense of others for selfish gain purposes. They are not only a betrayer to their victims but, also to their character that is without unadulterated value. The value is the personal characteristic of (Words with Meaning) that earns honor and respect. It is the character of Integrity thinking that is without the compromising of Ethics and Principles. A person without Integrity will always be a person without Honor that can never be respected as person of essence. There can only be the entrapment of routine thinking for selfish gain purposes that will always result at the expense of others. Read the essays of (Representation without Integrity), (Relative Points of Interest), (Bad duck bad luck), (Corporate Greed in America) and (Self –Serving positions of Power’s pledge of Allegiance) Who we are, is how we think and it is how we choose to think that earns us the respect or disrespect in life. Ultimately, it is the only thing that stays with us after our lives are over and it goes by way faster than we want and realize, it’s like blink in time compared to eternity. Right thinking leads to good choices “Always”

© Author

Don L. Johnson